Re: OLCC Enforcement against Copper Cane Wine Labels “The Willametter” and “Elouan”

Dear Mr. Marks:

The Oregon Winegrowers Association (OWA) represents the interests of Oregon’s more than 700 wineries and 1,000 wine grape growers. OWA and its members have worked hard to protect and promote the value and integrity of Oregon wine and its various wine regions. OWA has worked directly with the OLCC over the years to establish strong wine labeling regulations in Oregon Administrative Rules (OAR) Chapter 845, which often impose an even higher standard than TTB wine labeling rules. As a result of these efforts, Oregon’s wine regions have developed strong national and international reputations that continue to grow beyond state borders.

OWA wants to prevent misleading wine labeling and advertising that negatively impacts the Oregon wine industry as a whole. OWA recently has learned about certain wine labels and related wine advertising that require immediate OLCC intervention. It has come to OWA’s attention that Copper Cane, LLC (“Copper Cane”), a California winery located in Rutherford, California, is misusing Oregon’s appellations of origin on wine labels. Copper Cane sells wine under the brand names “The Willametter” and “Elouan.” It appears that Copper Cane purchases bulk wine produced in Oregon and vint and bottles the wine at its winery location in Rutherford, California, under “The Willametter” and “Elouan” wine labels. We also understand that Copper Cane may be processing some wine grapes in Oregon but it is unclear whether those are fully finished into wine before leaving the state or the wine is produced in California.

Copper Cane holds federal Certificate of Label Approvals (COLAs) for the “Elouan” and “The Willametter” wines, and these COLAs list “Oregon” as the given appellation for these wines. OWA sent the attached letter to the Alcohol Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau (TTB), alerting the TTB of apparent federal label and advertising violations. In that letter OWA requested the revocation of “The Willametter” COLA and the censure of Copper Cane for misleading advertising for Elouan case markings. (See attached OWA letter to TTB, dated August 8, 2018)

Applicable Oregon Laws. Oregon Administrative Rule (OAR) 845-010-0280 imposes TTB labeling regulations on all wine sold in Oregon by an OLCC licensee, but conditions that Oregon labeling regulations apply if the state regulations are different or stricter.

OAR 845-010-910(2) states that Oregon labeling regulations apply to any wine labeled with “Oregon” or an appellation of origin wholly within Oregon, “regardless of where the wine was produced or bottled.” Pursuant to OAR 845-010-0920(2), if the appellation of origin claimed or implied anywhere on a wine label is “Oregon,” an Oregon county, or an AVA wholly within Oregon, then 100% of the grapes used in the production of the wine must have been grown in Oregon, and 95% of the grapes must have been grown within the boundaries of the named appellation or AVA. (see OAR 845-010-0920(2)). This standard is higher than the TTB standard, which allows the use of an AVA on a wine label if 85% of the grapes in the wine are from the AVA. The TTB also requires that the wine be fully finished within the state where the AVA is located. (See 27 CFR 4.25(e)(3)). The TTB further requires that any use of an appellation of origin on a wine label “conforms to the laws and regulations of the named appellation area governing the composition, method of manufacture, and designation of wines made in such place.” (See 27 CFR 4.25(b)(1)).

Copper Cane Labels. OWA is concerned that the labels for Copper Cane’s “The Willametter” and “Elouan” wines are likely to cause confusion as to the geographic origin of the wine, in violation of Oregon labeling laws in OAR 845. The following are examples of such misuse:

- 2017 “The Willametter” wine label (Attachment A to TTB letter) uses several inaccurate geographic locations and makes an invalid reference in its brand name and on its label to Willamette Valley AVA. The TTB letter goes into detail on these issues. Oregon law prohibits such misuse of Oregon appellations.
- 2017 Elouan Pinot Noir: The approved COLA (attached) makes reference to three of Oregon’s approved AVAs (Willamette Valley, Umpqua Valley and Rogue Valley). Because these wine regions are all approved AVAs and do not overlap, 95% of the grapes cannot have been grown within the boundaries of the named AVAs, as required by OAR 845-010-0920(2).
- 2016 Elouan Missoulan Wash Oregon Reserve: The approved COLA (attached) references the Willamette Valley AVA in describing the grape source as “our hillside Willamette sites.” The Willamette Valley is an approved AVA, so per Oregon laws 95% of the grapes must come from the Willamette Valley AVA and all of the grapes must be grown within Oregon per OAR 845-010-0920(2). Yet appellation listed on the COLA is “Oregon” which suggests that the wine does not meet Oregon or TTB appellation standards for the use of Willamette Valley AVA.

If an OLCC licensee violates Oregon labeling laws, the OLCC has the authority to issue a Class IV violation, and require that licensee to stop selling and recall the affected wine (see OAR 845-010-0290(2),(4)). Further, OLCC has the ability to seize, test, and destroy any wine that does not conform to Oregon laws (see OAR 845-010-0310). Copper Cane is an OLCC licensee because it holds an OLCC Direct Shipper permit and Certificate of Approval.

OWA asks that the OLCC request the production, transfer in bond, and bottling records for “The Willametter” and “Elouan” wines to determine if Copper Cane is complying with Oregon law (as mentioned above, this means wine fully finished in Oregon with 95% of the grapes coming from the Willamette Valley AVA).

In addition to Oregon wine labeling laws, the “Elouan” and “The Willametter” labels appear to violate Oregon’s Unlawful Trade Practices Act (ORS 646.608 (1) (b),(d)) which states: “A person engages in an unlawful practice if in the course of the person’s business, vocation or occupation the person does any of the following: [...] (b) Causes the likelihood of confusion or of misunderstanding as to the source, sponsorship, approval, or certification of real estate, goods or services. [...] (d) Uses deceptive representations or designations of geographic origin in connection with real estate, goods or services.”

OWA respectfully requests that the OLCC investigate and enforce Oregon labeling and unfair trade practice laws against Copper Cane’s wine labels that misuse Oregon appellations of origin on wine labels. We look forward to swift resolution of these matters and are glad to assist in any way with additional information.

Sincerely,

John Pratt

Re: COLA Revocation Request for “The Willametter” (TTB ID 18036001000343) and Objection to Elouan Case Markings

Dear Ms. Scalese:

I am the President of the Oregon Winegrowers Association (OWA), the only statewide wine industry trade organization representing the interests of Oregon’s over 725 wineries and 1000 vineyards. OWA focuses on promoting the economic and political interests of the Oregon wine industry. One of OWA’s fundamental roles is the diligent protection of Oregon’s state and local appellations of origin for wine.

Copper Cane LLC (“Copper Cane”) is a California winery located in Rutherford, California. Copper Cane sells wine that is ostensibly produced from Oregon grown grapes under the brand names “The Willametter” and “Elouan.” It appears that Copper Cane purchases bulk wine produced in Oregon and vints and bottles the wine at its winery location in Rutherford, California, under “The Willametter” and “Elouan” wine labels. Copper Cane holds a Certificate of Label Approval (COLA) for these wines, for which Copper Cane listed the appellation as “Oregon.”

OWA is concerned that the label for Copper Cane’s “The Willametter” wine and case packaging for the “Elouan” wines are likely to cause confusion as to the geographic origin of the wine. Furthermore, the label and case packaging appear to misuse Oregon geographic terms of viticultural significance, and such misuse is likely to damage the goodwill of Oregon’s protected appellations of origin, in violation of several sections of 27 CFR part 4. OWA requests that, based on these violations of federal wine labeling and advertising laws, the TTB revoke approval for Copper Cane’s “The Willametter” COLA, and censure Copper Cane for its improper “Elouan” case markings. Copies of “The Willametter” COLA, photograph of “The Willametter” bottle of wine as actually labeled, and photographs of “Elouan” wine case packaging are attached to this letter for reference, as Attachments A, B, and C, respectively.

“The Willametter” Wine Label: “The Willametter” wine label (Attachment A) contains several terms and phrases that are highly likely to lead to geographic confusion and to muddle consumer perception of Oregon’s well respected wine appellations of origin. First, the wine label does not contain a valid appellation of origin, but references a mix of various geographic areas in Oregon.

Specifically the label references “the Willamette region of Oregon’s coastal range” and the “Territory of Oregon.” Neither of these are federally approved expressions of appellation of origin per 27 CFR 4.25(a)(1), and neither are accurate geographic locations. Oregon is a state, not a territory. Further, the Willamette is a valley, called the Willamette Valley, which is also an approved AVA per 27 CFR 9.90. The Willamette Valley AVA is not in the coastal region, as the Willamette Valley is separated from the Oregon coast by a mountain range, called the Oregon Coast Range. Accordingly, the use of these quasi-geographic terms should be prohibited pursuant to 27 CFR 4.39(a)(1), which prohibits “[a]ny statement that is false or untrue in any particular, or that, irrespective of falsity, directly, or by ambiguity, omission, or inference, or by the addition of irrelevant, scientific or technical matter, tends to create a misleading impression.”

Second, the brand name “The Willametter” and “The Willametter Journal” appear to violate 27 CFR 4.33(b), which prohibits misleading brand names that “in association with other printed or graphic matter” on the label and case packaging creates an erroneous impression as to the origin of the wine. 27 CFR 4.39(i) more specifically prohibits brand names of viticultural significance “unless the wine meets the appellation of origin requirements for the geographic area named.” The wine label as actually printed and used on bottles of “The Willametter” wine at retail changed the font color of the word “Willamette” on the brand label from black on the approved COLA to red (Attachment B, photograph of actual labeled wine). The changing of the color of the letters to red in a field of otherwise black lettering calls immediate notice to the geographic term “Willamette” on the brand label. A consumer will see the word “Willamette” and is likely to presume that the wine’s appellation of origin is the Willamette Valley AVA. Thus, “The Willametter” wine label makes invalid reference both in the brand name and on the brand label to Willamette Valley, an approved AVA. The appellation used on the COLA for “The Willametter” is Oregon, not the Willamette Valley. It is unclear if the wine meets Willamette Valley AVA viticultural labeling requirements in 27 CFR 4.25(e)(3) (85% of the grapes grown in the Willamette Valley AVA and wine fully finished in Oregon).

Even disregarding the fact that the Willamette Valley has special protection as a designated AVA, 27 CFR 4.39(j) prohibits the use of any product names with specific geographical significance “unless the appropriate TTB officer finds that because of their long usage, such names are recognized by consumers as fanciful product names and not representations as to origin. In such cases the product names shall be qualified with the word “brand” immediately following the product name, in the same size of type, and as conspicuous as the product name itself.” Here, “The Willametter” is not qualified per regulation, it is a new use (COLA was approved in February 2018), and so a consumer is likely to be confused as to geographic origin of the wine, and continued use will harm the viticultural significance of the Willamette Valley AVA.

OWA recognizes that a California winery can purchase bulk wine that is fully finished in Oregon, bottle it in California at their winery, and use supportable and geographically accurate Oregon appellations of origin on the wine label and related advertising materials.

However, the appellations of origin used on “The Willametter” label are inaccurate variations of accepted geographic terms, and thereby dilute the existing distinctive Oregon appellations of origin that the Oregon wine industry has worked very hard to develop and distinguish. Appellations of origin are critical marketing and educational tools for wine regions. Copper Cane’s misuse of Oregon’s distinctive appellations of origin through the use of “The Willametter,” “Willamette region of Oregon’s coastal range” and “Territory of Oregon” harm Oregon’s valuable geographic wine regions, and violate 27 CFR 4.39. For all of these reasons, OWA respectfully requests that the TTB revoke approval of “The Willametter” COLA, TTB ID 18036001000343, pursuant to authority granted in 27 CFR 13.41.

Elouan Case Markings: Copper Cane also owns the Elouan wine brand. Federal wine regulations apply to both labels and advertising used at retail sale, including any statements on retail displays and cases. Statements on a case cannot be inconsistent with wine labels. See 27 CFR 4.61 and 4.64(b). Attachment C contains photographs of Elouan wine case markings on a retail display. As with “The Willametter” label, the Elouan case markings contain misuses of Oregon appellations of origin. First, the case markings reference “Oregon Coast” which is not an approved appellation of origin per 27 CFR 4.25(a)(1).

Additionally, as with wine labels, case markings do not allow for multiple AVAs unless the AVAs overlap and 85% of the volume of the wine is derived from grapes grown in that overlapping area. See 27 CFR 4.25(e)(4). Per Attachment C, the AVAs used on the case at retail sale are Willamette Valley, Umpqua Valley and Rogue Valley. These Oregon AVAs do not overlap and so it is impossible for the advertised wine to be in compliance with 27 CFR 4.25(e)(4). OWA requests that the TTB Alcohol Labeling and Formulation Division (ALFD) censure Copper Cane’s misuse of Oregon AVAs and appellations of origin on its case packaging, and prohibit any future misuse.

OWA looks to the TTB’s ALFD to protect and enforce Oregon’s appellations of origin on wine labels and case packaging, and respectfully requests the TTB’s immediate revocation of “The Willametter” COLA and prohibition of the pictured Elouan case markings. We look forward to swift resolution of these matters.

Sincerely,

John Pratt
